ALSO REVEALS HOW HARDING HAD MELLON TRAPPED

the attended by the President, Mr. Harding, Daugherty, Secretary Hughes and others high in public life.

The money in the aircraft scandal, it was learned by the Boston Herald, was delivered to him in the Bellevue Hotel near the Department of Justice.

It came from the representative of the Mitsui Company, a Japanese concern, financial backer of the Standard Aircraft Corporation, against which corporation the government at that time had a war fraud suit involving several million dollars.

Subsequently it developed the government's suit against the Standard Company was withdrawn at the request of the War Department.

What because of this money, who got it and what was it for, were questions that Means said he could not answer. He simply said that as agent of the Department of Justice, at Smith's orders, he met the Japanese gentleman in the Bellevue Hotel, collected the cash and turned it over to Smith.

In all these transactions which he alleged, Means described himself as the "money carrier."

TRAPPED MELLON

Replete with details of his activities, Means told a story alleging that for the information of President Harding, through Smith and W. T. Underwood, he had conducted an investigation of Secretary Mellon, in connection with liquor permits in New York.

"He slipped through our fingers the first time," Means said, "but we got him."

The office of Senator La Follette, Means testified, had been ransacked by his agents soon after the Senator from Wisconsin began settling up with the "Teapot Dunning" scandal, in an effort to "find some thing damning."

Senator Caraway, Democrat of Arkansas, Means further said, also came under espionage after he began attacking Attorney General Daugherty and Mr. Harding. Senator Bruce of Maryland, also a Democrat, and newly elected, Means said, was investigated.

SPENT THOUSANDS

"Jesse Smith wanted us to catch Secretary Mellon, and we caught him," said Means. "President Harding decided to wave immunity and 'let it all' against the advice of his counsel T. B. Fisher."

Means said he thought Smith was a "cheap, hard-boiled old fellow" of the United States than he was of the Attorney General.

Smith, he said, got reports constantly on the stock market over the Attorney General's telephone, but in the Attorney General's office.

Sometimes Smith would later read the stock reports to the Attorney General.

Means testified.

Means was formerly a Department of Justice investigator who was active in pressing for investigation of aircraft scandals.

Also at President Harding's request, Means testified, he investigated Senator Caraway, Democrat of Arkansas, and also Senator La Follette, after the latter had been indicted by the House in connection with the investigation of the Teapot Dunning scandal.

"He had come to our attention," Means said, "and we got him."

Means said, "that Secretary Mellon had to furnish certain permits for certain purposes."

"I'm usually speaking, you were investigating the liquor ring in New York, were you not?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"Well, it was into violations of the prohibition law."

Jesse W. Smith and W. T. Underwood, said Means, gave him orders to investigate Senator La Follette in connection with information he had, and "trying to stop him." Smith paid his expenses.

Means, however, could not state of his own knowledge that Smith was following orders of the attorney-general.

SENATOR BRUCE

Underwood, he knew, represented President Harding because he had seen a letter to Jesse Smith from President Harding authorizing an "under cover" investigation.

Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland, also was investigated right after election, Means declared.

The investigations of Senator Bruce were ordered by "Jesse Smith or some of them," the witness said.

Means, when he took the stand, said he had decided to wave immunity and "let it all" against the advice of his counsel T. B. Fisher.

Means said he thought Smith was a "cheap, hard-boiled old fellow" of the United States than he was of the Attorney General.

Vanderlip Speeds to Washington on "Sudden Call"

New York, March 14.—Frank A. Vanderlip today cancelled speaking engagements for tonight and tomorrow and took an afternoon train for Washington in response to what his secretary said had been a "sudden call."

The secretary devoted the matter as of "great importance," but would not divulge his nature.

He was watching the investigation. Senator Wheeler returned to New York after a trip to Washington.

"Who did you pass the money on to when it was received by you?" he asked.

"Mr. Jesse Smith and Mr. Underwood," he replied.

Means said he said off the men "they" had employed "and who were working under me."

A man named Harbison also collected some money and paid it to Underwood, Means declared.

The first money collected, Means said, was one hundred thousand dollars, which was sent to the Standard Aircraft case.

The $100,000 was received in the old Bellevue Hotel here in February, 1923, just before Smith went to Florida, Means added.

Means said he received, he said, from a "Jap acting for the Mitsui Company."

"Jesse Smith came along and got that same night," Means said, to Mean's hotel room.

"I don't know what it was for at that time," Means said.

He told him he was to get the money and to count it, Means declared.

Senator Wheeler brought out that one of the charges against the Attorney General in the recent impeachment case was in connection with the Standard Aircraft case.

Means testified, was withdrawn by the War Department from the Department of Justice.

Means said he was assigned by William H. Rouse, Jr., of the Standard Aircraft Corporation, Means said, later expressed willingness to make a settlement.

Smith had told him, the witness said, that the Standard Aircraft Company owed the government "two or three million."

"Burns told you to go to Mingie and he'd come through," Means was asked.

He led up to him very easily, said Means, but he declared Burns was absolutely honest and would "take anybody out of his office" at the suggestion of graft.

When the aircraft case was taken out of his hands, Means said, he told Burns that Captain Scarfe threatened to blow the roof off the place.

"STOOD PAT" Means said he was outraged because his investigation of the case was stopped, Means said, and he "warred then repeatedly" of Scarfe's feelings.

Means said he did not report to Burns on the $100,000 deal with Jesse Smith because Smith told him to say nothing about it.

"I stood pat and watched," Means said.

Smith told him particularly to say nothing about it to Burns.

In the aircraft case investigation, Means said, he looked into sale of aircraft engines. An over-payment by the government of over $1,000,000 was alleged.

Senator Wheeler emphasized to the committee that the record of the Daugherty impeachment had brought out the attorney-general's alleged failure to prosecute the aircraft case. An over-payment by the government of over $1,000,000 was alleged.

Means told of seeing the treasurer and other members of the aircraft firm and read from copies of his reports on the case. Means presented from his file a copy of a letter reporting the accounts between the Standard Aircraft Company and Mitsui.

Means said he had received money in connection with liquor transactions which he had referred to in his report on the case. Means said that in receiving money from Smith he had received a check, the most he had received at one time was $5,000 or $7,000.

and Co. A difference of two to three million dollars was involved. A copy of the invoice report, Captain Scarfe to the Department of Justice on the case also was submitted by Means.

Scarfe, who sat at Senator Wheeler's elbow, helped in identifying the report, which related that Mitsui & Co. were Japanese bankers and financial agents in the Standard Aircraft case.

The German government paid him once or twice, before Japan got into the case, Means said.

After payment of the $100,000 in the aircraft deal, Means said he learned the source of the money from Jesse Smith, who asked him he had told anyone about it.

"He seemed to be very uneasy to tell it," Means said, "and I was very uneasy to tell it." Means, stating that Smith was annoyed because several "Progressives" had been elected to Congress and "might cause trouble."

Smith told him of the source of the $100,000 in the Fall of 1923, Means said.

SMITH AFRAID

"After he had become apprehensive about election of 'Progressives' he did not tell me the source of the money," Means said.

Senator Means referred to a copy of the invoice report and Means said that he had heard that the (Means) was telling Senator Means something of the $100,000 deal.

Going back to the investigation of the Standard Aircraft case, Means said: "People went to his office and were afraid to tell him anything."

ity under his pending indictment if he testified before the committee. Asked if he wanted immunity, Means replied:

"I waive immunity. I ask no quarter and will give no quarter."

Means sketched his early life, his birth in North Carolina, experience as a school teacher, then as a salesman and "confidential man."

"I've been accused of many crimes in the catalogue, very known crimes as far as I am concerned, but I am not convicted as far as I am concerned if ever convicted of a felony."

Means said he also had worked for the German, British, Mexican and United States governments.

When asked what his present business was, he said: "Answering indictments. After I had been elected to Congress and 'might cause trouble.'"

Smith told him of the source of the $100,000 in the Fall of 1923, Means said.

Means said he had done work for Henry C. Frick in 1915 or 1916 in connection with the Standard Aircraft case.

He was often employed by the Standard Aircraft case, Means said, adding that his relations with W. J. Burns, chief of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation, were the "friendliest in the world."

Means said he did not know then or now whether Smith had any official position. Smith's work would be "very difficult to describe," he said.

Means joined the Department of Justice October 28, 1921, and worked there until early in 1922, when he was suspended, he said. He was reinstated with back pay May 28, 1922.

"Burns didn't know why they suspended me," he said.

The Attorney General told him later, Means said, that he had been suspended because "another Cabinet member" had requested it, as Means had been "too active in investigating oil in Mexico."

He was reinstated May 28, 1922, he continued, with some economy. The Attorney General, Assistant Attorney General Holland and C. R. Burns were present, he said, in the Attorney General's office.

LOVE BALM SUIT REVEALS FOUR MARRIAGES OF HAROLD O. BIGNEY

WIFE NO. 3 DECEASED $50,000

Accuses 70-Year-Old Father-in-Law of Alienating His Son's Affections

Sidney Osborne Bigney of Attleboro, delegate to two Republican National Conventions, member of Governor Guild's Council, friend of Governor President Taft, millionaire jewelry manufacturer and state champion of a protective tariff, has been sued for $50,000 for alleged alienation of affections.

The plaintiff is Elizabeth Bigney of Malden, wife of No. 1, Harold O. Bigney, the jewelry maker's only son.

"TRAGEDY OF LIFE"

Harold is living in Boston, with No. 1 as wife. No. 2, who married in 1907, in the following year his son for divorce.

No. 3 was Daisy McGee, who married Harold and Daisy in 1909. When Daisy married for divorce, she charged $50,000.

And then came Harriet Bigney, who was married to Harold in 1914. For $50,000 for coming between her and the father of her first child, Norma, who was born in 1915, she charged $50,000.

"He opposed our marriage," she says, speaking of Father-in-Law Bigney, "taking an unreasonable attitude without a person's meeting with me."

"He made my husband's life miserable with threats of 'but I can't leave you' if he did not leave me."

"After a meeting with his father, my husband would come home, cry and be very tender towards me."

After one of these meetings he failed to come back at all."

FIRST WIFE QUITS

Former Councilor Bigney's answer, in brief, is that "it isn't any."

Harriet Brooks, his second wife, Bigney says, "never was legally married. He was married to me."

After her husband, No. 1, died, Bigney, because of the prominence of the father Bigney, who traces his ancestry back to John Smith, a freeman of the D.D. eminent Swiss settler, and who was a freeman of the town, if the case came to trial, would attract wide attention.

Young Bigney first came before the public eye when, at the close of the freshman year, 1907, at Amherst, he pressed an automobile into service and eloped to Thompsonville, Ct., with Jane Keith Smith, a freeman of the town, who had been at several social functions held at Northampton.

Getting into Thompsonville, they went from place to place until they located a minister, conveyed him to his church in their automobile and were married.

NO. 2 LEAVES HIM

This marriage met with the parental objection of both families, but after a wedding trip to Europe the couple went to Attleboro and set up a residence in a small cottage on the estate of the late William Bigney, the father of the young man, who was a jeweler at a small wage.

They became part of the social whirl of the city. Finally there was an estrangement. Suit for divorce was filed by Mrs. Bigney, charging the statutory offenses. That was in 1914.

She obtained a decree nisi and her divorce became absolute in June, 1915.

In December, 1915, young Bigney applied at Providence City Hall for licenses to marry Daisy McGee, the daughter of George R. McGee, a traveling salesman.

MOTHER FOILS PLOT TO STEAL HER SON

Roxbury Woman Wins, With Policeman's Aid; Sues for Custody in Court

A sweet battle with her husband for the possession of her baby boy was won by Mrs. Mary E. Fisher, youthful Roxbury mother.

Today she engaged in another battle, in court, for possession of her boy and his brother.

A curious crowd witnessed the street battle on Warren street, Roxbury, when William H. Fisher, husky North Cambridge druggist, attempted to snatch the baby from the arms of Mrs. Fisher, who would only ninety-five pounds.

Committed, however, of her own physical disadvantage, the young mother fought like a tiger to keep the boy also carried in her arms.

"If Patrolman John P. McCarthy of the Dudley street station had arrived just when he did, I don't know what would have happened to me and baby," said Mrs. Fisher today at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fisher, No. 17 Glenwood street, Roxbury.

"The officer took me home and Mr. Fisher followed along."

Today in Superior Court, before Justice Wood, Mrs. Fisher, who has filed suit for divorce, was to fight against two motions by Fisher's counsel, seeking custody of their two children and to restrain her from leaving the State.

Before the Superior Court, Mrs. Fisher, however, was not advised by her counsel to swear an affidavit and battery warrant against her husband in Roxbury court.

Two weeks ago the young mother, with her two children, fled to the refuge of her parents' home in Roxbury, after she alleged, she had been held prisoner by Fisher at No. 17, Charter street, Cambridge. She is the mother of William McKetown, Warren Harding Fisher, only seven years old, and a daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Fisher and Son.

LIQUOR RAID LEADS TO ABINGTON

Brookton Squad Seizes Outfit and Then Calls Two

Brookton, March 14.—Members of the police liquor raiding squad found themselves in a predicament early today.

On the trail of a big moonshine plant, with their automobile stalled in the snow and after they had gone some three or four miles on foot, the squad discovered the still. But they also discovered that it was located on Quincy street, outside the city limits of Abington, in the town of Abington.

The same spirit that prompted their forbearance to direct action at Lexington caused Constable to suddenly suggest, cover them and, brushing technicalities aside, they made a concerted rush to the house of Samuel Gutter.

In the house the raiders found two stills, each of one hundred gallons capacity, in full operation. In each still, across they found 120 gallons of moonshine and 1200 gallons of water.

At this last moment the raiders weakened. They did not make any arrests, but furnished a list of the company and two heavy loads were secured to move the stills, liquor and mash to the police station.

The matter of arrests has been left to the Abington authorities.

PRISONERS IN GUN FIGHT IN POLICE VAN

Somebody Got $100 Ring, So an X-Ray Will Be Taken

Robbery in a police van while prisoners were being transported from the Lawrence street station to City Prison has the police baffled. John Shannon of Easton street, South End, wants his $100 diamond ring.

Shannon was arrested for intoxication. He dined, while lodging along in the "Black Maria."

Police on the front of the car heard rings within and opened the door. Shannon was on the floor with William Smith, colored, pumping him. Another prisoner, the only other occupant of the van, was looking on in a bored manner.

Shannon told police that while he was dining, Smith slipped the diamond ring from his finger and endeavored to substitute a fake diamond.

Smith, who had been arrested for shoplifting, was promptly searched but no trace of the ring was found. When the prison was reached, Smith was searched again, even his rubber heels being removed.

Shannon said that while the men were still in Lawrence street station he noticed the colored man with a "phony" diamond ring. Smith denied that he ever had such a ring. It was found later in his cell.

The only police solution is that someone swallowed the ring. This is where an X-ray machine comes in.

In court Smith was held in $200 on the charge of smuggling the ring and $50 on the shoplifting charge. The court decided Shannon had suffered enough and let him go.

RECORD STRUCK OUT

The findings of the lower court and referee "as to the innocence of Mrs. Stillman" were affirmed and the court's decision declared and were ordered stricken out.

The victory came in the decision of the Appellate division put to rest aside the decision of the Supreme Court which had accepted the report of a special referee declaring Guy legitimate and declining to accept the findings of the Stillman case involving his wife and Fred Beauvais, Indian guide, who Stillman had alleged was the father of the child.

Stillman, former president of the National City Bank, sought to keep the case on the grounds of the famous "confession" letters, which he alleged Mrs. Stillman wrote to her husband from Buffalo after returning from a trip to Canada.

The referee who heard the case refused to admit this letter as evidence and Stillman held that his rejection was illegal and that the failure of the referee to admit it constituted respecting the issue.

The decision of the five justices of the Appellate division was unanimous. Stillman's only recourse now is to appeal to the Court of Appeals, which can only be done with the consent of the Appellate division.

Despite this, the Appellate division announced he would endeavor to carry the case to the higher court.

Justice N. Mills, counsel for Mrs. Stillman, asserted that Mrs. Stillman, wife, and entitled her to the support that was to be expected from such a man in such a position in life.

Grace George Hurt, well known actress and wife of William A. Hurt, theatrical producer, was cut about the face and hands when her automobile was overturned by a car.

Grace George Hurt, with an injured arm, her injuries were said not to be serious.

Several passengers were shaken up when a Boston and Middlesex trolley car, running between Lexington and Waltham, jumped the track on Scott's Hill, near the town line.

The car was restored to the track and continued the run to Waltham. Concord probably will be without car service for the remainder of the week.

Sections of the line from Arlington to Waltham have been opened, but some drifts block the tracks. Lexington schools have not yet re-opened, due to the deep snow.

22 Years in Postoffice, Paid Less Than Laborer

Postoffice letter carriers receive only $4.92 a day for carrying out and delivering from 125 to 150 pounds of mail a day. Out in all kinds of weather they receive less than haul carriers. They are asking for a living wage, for at least $2400 a year. Here is another convincing reason why they should get more pay.

Michael J. Egan is attached to the Central Postoffice, carrying mail in the vicinity of State street. Egan is the father of four children whose ages range from five to fourteen years. He supports his family, and pays house rent of $50 a month on $1800 a year. He has been in the service for 22 years.

Hasty Pudding Dance to Be Rustic Costume Party, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN
THERE won't be any alluring lace or crystal taffetas at the Hasty Pudding dance, for to-night's affair out Cambridge way is a rustic costume party.

So that Miss Debutante will transform herself for the occasion into a demure country maid with cotton and organdy.

A host of patronesses are sponsoring this annual and long-anticipated event, among them Mesdames Charles Burnes, Thomas P. Mandell, Charles T. Love, Jr., Henry Sturgis Greer and Richard S. Russell, all of Boston, as well as Mrs. Thomas W. Lamont of New York and Mrs. Thomas Newhall of Radnor, Pa. Harold Farrantelli heads the group arranging the affair, assisted by Markie McKee Henry—the fiancée of Miss Barbara Whitney of Gotham—Corliss Lamont, Harrison Gardner, Charles Burnes, Jr., and Brooks Potter.

AFTER a winter spent in Paris, Miss Elizabeth Percival returned to these shores in time to join the chorus of "On Day," recently staged by society folk for the disabled ex-servicemen.

This week Miss Percival joined the Boston colony at Camden, S. C., where her "pal," Miss Helen Stone of Chestnut Hill, is now staying at the Winter home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Stone.

Miss Percival, who can sail a boat as neatly as anyone, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Percival of Commonwealth avenue.

and "Gray Court," Marshfield Neck. She made her bow in society a year ago last November, and the following June her parents announced her engagement to W. Scott Blanchard of Concord, Harvard 75. I understand that the wedding of the young couple is to be an event of the Spring.

Miss Percival is a slim, boyish-looking girl with bobbed brown hair and gray-blue eyes.

THERE is a Boston interest in the news that Miss Philippa Wendell has been selected for the amateur cast of Wilfrid Eyre's musical comedy, "Chiquita," which will be produced for charity in London on April 30, at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden.

Miss Wendell, a niece of Mrs. Barrett Wendell of Boston, is the daughter of Mrs. Jacob Wendell, formerly of New York and now of Sandridge, Wisc. England. Miss Wendell's late father was one of the best known amateur actors of the New York city. He later made his professional debut, maintaining his interest in the theatre until his death, several years ago.

The young Countess of Carnarvon is a sister of Miss Wendell. The countess's husband inherited the title on the death last year of his father following the discovery and early excavation at the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen.

$500,000 LOSS BY BLAZE IN LAWRENCE

10,000 Rounds of Ammunition
Explode as Four-Story
Block Burns to Ground

Lawrence, March 14.—Damage estimated at more than $500,000 was caused by a fire which destroyed the four-story building of the Treat Hardware Company, Inc., at Broadway and Essex streets.

Ten thousand rounds of ammunition, stored in the building exploded at intervals.

After three alarms had been sounded, the towns of Methuen, Andover and North Andover were called upon for assistance.

Hundreds of gallons of oil, paint and varnish which were in the building, burned furiously and helped to make the fire one of the most stubborn the local department has ever had to cope with.

Although the firemen were able to keep the flames confined to the hardware company's building, ruins in the Hotel Bristol, adjoining it and in the American House, across the street, were warned to prepare to leave.

The Broadway branch of the Merchants Trust Company, located on the street floor of the building, suffered water damage.

Lieutenant Albert Kelley of Engine No. 2, was injured while fighting the blaze. The exact nature of his injuries could not be learned from officials of the General Hospital.

The fire failed to reach an underground tank in which 2,000 gallons of oil were stored.

Great excitement was caused at an early morning hour when the third and fourth floors of the building collapsed.

It is estimated that the damage done to the hardware firm's stock amounted to $200,000. The building itself was valued at $300,000.

Eastern Crown. Short of Provisions. Five Days Late After Storm Battle

The storm-battered shipping boat steamship Eastern Crown docked at the Army base today five days late from Bermuda, her last port of call on her way from South African ports.

She was short of provisions when she reached Boston and the crew had become unruly, though not completely out of hand.

Louis V. Doyle, United States Consul to Durban, South Africa, was one of the passengers. He has been transferred to Tahiti and is en route to that South Sea Island port, via Washington.

Miss Stinson might come from the far remote corner of the Buckle state, but she knows how to dress. Where she first entered the grand jury room she doffed a handsome mink wrap, revealing her features. The question that puzzled Washington is whether this girl is telling her story to the investigating committee to avenge the memory of her husband, or whether she is in league with a motive

BIG SPORTING CELEBRITIES IN FILM

Turf and Ring Well Represented in "The Great White Way"

The field of sports is having its influence in motion pictures in "The Great White Way," the Metropolitan photograph at the Park Theatre. Leading celebrities of the prize ring, the race track, prominent sportswriters and other familiar figures of sportsworld make their film debut in the new picture.

The turf and the ring, along with the leaders in these two branches of sport, are graphically brought to the screen in this picture of life in the great metropolis. One of the big features is a realistic prize fight in which Pete Harrier, well-known lightweight contender, battles Oscar Shaw, leading man of the film.

This scene included such sporting celebrities as Tex Rickard, who appears as a promoter; Joe Humphries, announcer; and Johnny Galagher, as referee. Others who appear around the ring or in the training quarters at Madison Square Garden are: Billy Do Nick, "Kid" Brand, Tammany Young and I. C. Wiwer, author of the story.

Another thrilling feature of "The Great White Way" is a big race track scene, filmed at Belmont Park on Putnam Drive. It features a realistic steeplechase, specially staged for the picture, and many other phases of turf life. Boris Hand, world's premier jockey, is another of the many sporting celebrities who appear.

BRICKLEY SOLD STOCK FOR G. F. REDMOND CO.

to time. It is charged, from Brickley's suits in the Vander-Asterns. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were passed through the cashier's window of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc.

As a matter of fact, the Goldfield properties had failed years ago to produce "pay" under the management of expert mining engineers.

FAILED LONG AGO

The thousands of person who have engaged in the game of stock gambling through the partial payment brokerage houses may be interested to learn just how their names were obtained by the salesman who first talked to them, and incidentally, just what methods were used to separate the customer from his or her money.

G. F. Redmond & Co., conducted a side issue a business in New York, which consisted of buying and selling "sucker lists." These lists contained the names of persons who have been found gullible.

Another common method used by the partial payment brokers to Boston is to take the telephone directory and find the names of all women who have residential phones. The theory upon which this is based is that such women are probably women of means and are presumably widows.

Let us suppose that John Brown is called on the telephone. Flooded with literature by mail, he is talked to personally by salesman, and finally becomes a customer of "G. F. & Co." The chances are that the salesman has Mr. Brown make his first investment in some legitimate stock.

This stock rises. John Brown is elated. He decides to sell and take his profit. A glib-tongued customer man induces Mr. Brown to reverse his profit and original capital. Usually the new stock Mr. Brown invests in requires a little more money than he originally had placed with the firm.

This procedure is continued until Mr. Brown has all his money invested in some stock that explodes. Profits and capital vanish. John Brown goes back to his daily labor and his name is dropped from the mailing list.

Suppose John Brown insists on making the original profit. Hundreds of such cases have ended in the same attorney's office. It is interesting to state that in the majority of cases where complaints against partial payment houses have been taken up with the authorities that there has been a prompt settlement.

It is in natural, of course, that John Brown should care more about seeing his money come back than about being a hero and pushing any prosecution against the brokerage house, which took his money.

Just another word about Mr. "G." the gullible ending behind the firm of G. F. Redmond & Co., Inc.

HEARING MONDAY

Word comes today that Mr. "G." not only has the history of having been barred from the State of Illinois, but that he was indicted in the South some years ago on a charge of selling the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Next Monday morning, the District Court County Grand Jury will sit in a special session called by District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien to hear evidence against John Brown.

Tomorrow the Boston American will present another article concerning the scheme through which Mr. "G." and his associates have taken millions of dollars from the savings of New England workmen and women.

With a cargo of 7,000 tons of coal, the Wyoming was on her way to St. John, N. B., from Hampton Roads, Va. She recently was laid up in the waters three miles off the coast and left that port about three weeks ago on her first trip under the new conditions. Captain Glad, 45, a bachelor, had been in command of the ship nearly two years.

The last report made of the Wyoming was that on Sunday last she passed Vineyard Haven bound East, and ordinarily her owners would have no grounds for complaint. It is reported that she had safely gone over the shoals.

On Tuesday, however, Captain

Hanson of the steamer Aberdeen, reported on arriving at Portland that on Monday he saw a six-masted and a five-masted schooner anchored to each other about five miles northeast of Pollock Rip Lightship.

Note No. 1

By living entirely up to ours, we have enlarged our business to seven large markets, from one small one. Through the columns of the daily press from week to week we place before the public what our knowledge tells us is the best purchase for one who desires quality at a reasonable price. We enumerate meats, fresh, corned or smoked. We state the best values in fish, eggs and the prices quoted on all goods you will find are the same at all our shops. We do not sell small, unmarketed quantities, for it would not be possible to advertise them honestly. We invite a comparison of prices with other merchants on the same quality, but we would caution the public to bear in mind that every article sold in our seven large markets bears our guarantee.

NEW DODGE MODELS MUCH IMPROVED

It is immediately apparent to anyone visiting the Houdon Motor Company's booth at the Automobile Show that the new type Dodge Brothers product far surpasses all previous efforts of this concern to build a moderate-priced car of comfortable appearance as well as quality.

Bodies are now graceful, with a streamlined effect that permits very favorable comparison with cars of the more expensive type. The wheel base is two inches longer than the Dodge Brothers' car exhibited here last Spring.

HUB DELEGATION CANCELS FORD TRIP
A delegation of Boston business men and engineers who had planned to leave for Detroit for a conference with Ford officials in regard to the selection of a site for the erection of a Ford plant in Boston was forced to cancel the trip when word was received that Ford's traffic engineer was away.

The delegation now awaits word from Edsel Ford.

MAXWELL CLUB SEDAN SALES WAY AHEAD

Unable to Meet Demands Despite Repeated Increase in Output

Although its output has been repeatedly raised since the first announcement of it was made, dealers in various parts of the country are still unable to meet the existing demand for the Maxwell Motor Corporation's latest model, the club sedan.

Raising its expectations on this fact, the officials of the company predict that during 1924 there will be a larger demand for the club sedan than there has been for any Maxwell ever produced in the past.

They are particularly enthusiastic over the high quality of the body interior that was designed for it. Many improvements in the construction of the so-called "utility" type of car have been made.

Times who have inspected the new machine have seen it is an unusual model, with all the maximum possible in the so-called utility type without its disadvantages.

The club sedan is a full five-passenger enclosed model, fully equipped, including window lifters, disc steel wheels, coil tires, view, heater, coil ventilator and adjustable windshield. Its unusually wide doors enable rear seat passengers to enter and get out without discomfort and inconvenience.

PAGE SALES POLICY OUTLINED AT DINNER

The sales policy, its possibilities in the New England States and plans for increased factory production were the high spots of an address by Harry M. Jewett, president of the Page Detroit Motor Car Company, at the annual dinner of dealers.

Fred E. Skeeton of the Page-Detroit of New England presided, other speakers included Sherman L. Dwyer, controller, and Walter K. Towers, advertising manager of the Page Company. The latter outlined the advertising campaign for 1924.

The plans of the company for production of over 25,000 Pages and Jewetts this year was also told by the president.

H. A. BONELLI.

Local manager of the Federal Motor Truck Company, which has one of the largest truck sales organizations in business. Many of their distributors have been with the company since its inception.

Plans of the company for 1924 include the bringing out of one new model on an entirely different truck than has ever been manufactured.

Many Locomobile Owners Are Buying New Models

This year's series of Locomobile models offers such a wide range of choice in body types that many Locomobile owners have purchased new cars of the same make.

For years Locomobile dealers have remarked upon the difficulty they always experienced in persuading buyers of their machine to purchase new ones. The answer to their selling talk was always the same or of a great similarity: "I've had that old job for such and such a number of years, and never had a bit of trouble with it. Why should I buy a new one?"

VELIE ADDS TWO TO LONG LIST OF SUCCESSSES

1924 Sedan and Touring Car Viewed With Admiration by Prospective Buyers

The two additions to the Velie Motor Corporation line for 1924, the sedan and touring car, have been viewed with admiration by many prospective car purchasers and are expected to be among the centers of interest at the automobile show.

The company entered the 1924 show with one of the most complete lines of models in the industry. The company's line, of Velie 55 Low, includes the "Silver Swallow," sport model, four-door touring, four-passenger coupe and five-passenger touring car.

The "Silver Swallow" is known as the beauty of the 1924 line and is one of the Velie firm's finest creations. Its body and hood are of aluminum with a natural finish covered with a transparent coat of varnish.

All of the models are equipped with the Velie-built motor, which is received so much favorable comment last year, and during 1924. Every mechanical part of the Velie car is of the latest type and design.

Customers who have made a study of the Velie line believe the car answers every demand of the automobile user.

The new six model is said to be the largest and roomiest in its field. It has a perfect chassis balance and a road riding ease and is one of the most economical cars to operate.

SQUEAK AND RATTLE ABOLISHED BY STUTZ

Perhaps an automobile in the entire field of motorcars is more completely silenced and protected against rattle and noise than the Stutz car. Stutz cars are made according to a standard issued by the Stutz Motor Corporation of America, Indianapolis, Ind.

Furthermore, according to the company, no car has such a complete and exclusive method of body mounting as the Stutz car. The frame work of all Stutz Six bodies is of selected hard wood, dry-killed and seasoned to prevent it from cracking or splitting. The frame-work is riveted and braced at all joints and is forever secure as likely to last.

You are entitled to know why you are asked to pay more for your Coffee—Here are the facts

Today the world's available surplus of coffee is at a dangerously low point. Demand has overrun production, and the present price increase is the result.

The world's consumption of coffee has been steadily growing, while coffee production has fallen off. There have been poor years—years when production ran high in quantity, but low in quality.

Last year's crop was large, but badly rain damaged. This year's crop—which will soon come into the market—is disappointingly small.

Then, too, for some years after the war, money in the coffee growing countries was much depreciated. Now it is recovering and the increase in value means that the United States dollar buys less raw coffee than it did heretofore.

In the coffee industry, just as in any other, when available supplies are low, prices increase.

And when the price of raw coffee advances, there are just two things the coffee importer can do—

He can maintain quality, and increase the selling price proportionately—

Or he can maintain the selling price—at the sacrifice of quality—by using those grades of coffee which come within his price limit.

For the House of Quinby the first way to meet the present increase in raw coffee prices was the only way. The House of Quinby was founded on the "quality" principle. Steadfastly, during all the years of business growth, we have held to our early determination never to allow any consideration of price to lower the quality standard of La Touraine Coffee.

And so, now that supplies of high grade raw coffee are scarce enough to cause a rise in prices, the House of Quinby has unhesitatingly bought the best—considering the higher price we have had to pay as "quality insurance" for La Touraine Coffee.

There is no way to evade or combat the law of supply and demand. We cannot hope to control the price of raw coffee—

But we can control the quality of La Touraine Coffee, and the present price—52 cents a pound—is the reflection of our determination to maintain La Touraine quality under all conditions—to give the people of America what we have always given them in the past, and what they have learned to expect—the best.

You might as well have the best

$1,000,000 BOND LETS SEIZED SHIP SAIL
New York, March 13.—Five of the seven members of the crew of the Italian mail ship Ortona, when seized by the United States coast guard, were released today. They will be sentenced Wednesday.

What Bay Staters Are Saying

DAVID A. ELLIN, Commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities in an address at Boston University, said: "The United States should pay the railroads adequately for carrying mail, as a means of alleviating difficulties now confronting New England railroads."

MRS. W. R. KROGER of Fairfield, Me., before the Women's Republic Club at the Copow Plaza, gave five minutes of advice for women jurors. "Give attention to the lawyers' presentation of the case, weigh testimony of witnesses; regard lawyer's pleas as relaxation; give close attention to the judge's charge; discuss the case in a calm manner without becoming foolishly sentimental."

M. R. RAFFEL, Norway general agent for the United and Anchor lines said: "Boston is one of the safest ports in the Americas to send immigrant families with small children, girls traveling alone and young men not sophisticated in the ways of the world."

SENATOR WARREN E. TARBELL of San Brookfield, in a statement before the joint legislative committee on rules charged that his insurance antitobacco act had been "emerged" until practically every insurance man had been paid some money. "The insurance industry," he declared, "is the most odious that has ever existed. It influences our legislation, sways our courts and keeps us in its power. It is a great evil and it is our duty to get it down and know in advance how members of these committees are going to vote."

ASK PROBE OF BOY'S DEATH

State Ward Alleged to Have Been Hit by Stick of Wood

Seventeen-year-old Sylvia Gronnet, orphan ward of the great State of Massachusetts, has appealed to the Commonwealth to tell her the true story of the death in Worcester City Hospital last week of her only brother, Harry, a ward of the State.

The record shows that the boy who was 14 years old, had been attended by Dr. H. H. Royall of Boston, that the cause of his death was a jaw and that he had been struck by a stick of wood.

UNCLE TO ASK PROBE.

Abraham A. Skidmore, of No. 2 Commonwealth street, the uncle of the boy, has asked the Commonwealth to probe the death of his nephew. He said that he had never before been so shocked as when he learned of the death of his nephew.

Following the death of the boy, a few years ago, the Commonwealth, in the name of the State, was asked to probe the death of the boy. The Commonwealth, in the name of the State, was asked to probe the death of the boy.

Although the joint legislative committee on Public Welfare, in its report, stated that the death of the boy was a tragedy, it did not recommend a probe.

Young men who are good cost clerks are not easy to find.

There is a World War veteran, who before answering the call of his country, was employed by a construction company on cost and clerical work. He was wounded but is now completely recovered.

Since his discharge from the army he has been trained in accounting. He is recommended for a position as bookkeeper or cost clerk on construction work. He is married and lives in Boston.

If you are interested in this veteran and can give him employment, call Congress 1000, Boston Chamber of Commerce, and ask for Case No. 76.

VARIOCOUPLER FLEXIBLE COUPLING WITH THIS DEVICE

IS MADE AT HOME
Special Adjustment of Stator Tube Permits Varying the Location of Rotor

Most Vario-couplers on the market today are not very flexible and the degree of flexibility cannot be varied to suit the needs of the user. The Vario-coupler described below is the best that can be made today. It permits the varying of the half-point of No. 22 tube in 1/4 inch.

One of the main reasons for this is that the rotor is not a tube, but a disk. One tube is not a tube, but a disk. One tube is not a tube, but a disk.

NOVEL VARIOCOUPLER

A series of extra holes for the rotor shaft of this home made variocoupler permits unusually flexible coupling. The position of the rotor may be varied when either loose or close coupling is desired.

Placed on both sides to kill the rotor in the center. Rotor is fixed.

The completed variocoupler is now locked up in the set. It is not a new device, but a modification of the old one. It is not a new device, but a modification of the old one.

The above specific points may be followed or it will be impossible to construct the variocoupler.

3 MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning
America's Cities Before This Nation Failed.

THE United States has been an independent nation for about one hundred and fifty years. Yet how many people realize that the Spaniards were in America for nearly a century and a half before the first British settlement in North America?

Yet how many people realize what great and permanent value we hold in the discoveries of Spain on this continent? The Spaniards were the first to discover the great gold and silver mines in the West Indies, Central America, and the Caribbean Sea, and the first to establish a permanent settlement in the New World.

It was one of these Spaniards—the trips which followed the oil Panama. It was through the Panama Canal and actually across the Isthmus of Panama that the first European ships came to the United States. The Spaniards were the first to discover the great gold and silver mines in the West Indies, Central America, and the Caribbean Sea, and the first to establish a permanent settlement in the New World.

It is hard to judge in any of the American cities, and in the cities of the world, the cities that before any other in America have been the most important. The cities of the world, the cities that before any other in America have been the most important. The cities of the world, the cities that before any other in America have been the most important.

When the Spaniards came to the United States, they found a land of great beauty and great resources. They found a land of great beauty and great resources. They found a land of great beauty and great resources.

WORDS FROM WISE MEN

We sometimes make friends with people who are not our own kind.

We should not be too sure when they are not our own kind.

He who thinks without feeling is not a wise man.

It is to be a truly virtuous man to wish to be always exposed to the view of virtuous people.

Prove does not like to owe, and will have his due to pay.

The great secret to a quiet life is a series of distractions.

Elevation is to meet what dreads to a hard-bitten person.

The best way to win is to be stronger than a strong man.

Some men would not be true if they did not have a conscience.

We do not always love those who admire us, and we do not always love those who admire us.

There are people as catching as contagious diseases.

A man of sense may love like a mad man, but never like a fool.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

In the South, March 14-15
Final visits have been to Charlotte, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, and High Point. North Carolina affords not as many advanced than any other Southern State.

Almost every business outfit in the area of the South has already been visited in the past week by North Carolina.

North Carolina has matured the negro problem. Both at Charlotte and Greensboro there are numerous negro institutions for the advanced teaching of colored youths. Institutions such as the agricultural and technical schools at Greensboro are ideally fitted to develop the colored race along modern, practical lines. These students are being trained to become efficient farmers and how to use tools. Moreover the whole attitude of Carolinians towards the colored folk is friendly and sympathetic, with the result that relations between the two races are unusually satisfactory.

The development of industries has made more progress in the Carolinas than in any other Southern State. In the South, one county alone has more than a hundred cotton mills. Last year Southern mills made more cotton than all the mills of New England combined, according to the progress made in the Carolinas.

At Winston-Salem I inspected the largest factory in the kind in the world, where Cornflakes are produced, I understand, at the rate, sometimes, of well over 600,000 a day. Allowing this huge plant is another unique in the South, where Prince Albert and the like are being turned out by train loads every day. In the South, too, had two partners in the handling of the business, but they both broke from the partnership and withdrew, leaving Reynolds to fight the battle alone. He did a few years ago, more than a millennium. His brother is now head of this enterprise on the terrace.

Then North Carolina has the second largest furniture center in the United States, at High Point. The town is largely to diversify the State's industrial activities. The furniture industry, however, is High Point would be a credit to Fifth avenue, New York.

Greensboro is one of the leading insurance centers in America. It has a new skyscraper which is the only one of other cities in the South built through the enterprise of John P. Jones, the leading insurance agent of the city. Winston-Salem has built a multiplexed high school which is rewarded in educational order without a superior in the whole country.

Force Can't Act Without Matter

Or Spirit Express Itself Without Both

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

Force can't act without matter. Consciousness, spirit, soul, mind, whatever you like to call it, cannot express itself without applying force to matter. If that were not so, wise Providence wouldn't have wasted power creating matter and force, but would have allowed us all to float around in the ether as simple "spirits."

Even heaven, as we are told, is made of gold and other precious materials. The spirits have something solid under their feet and real wings.

Remember that force cannot ACT without matter when you are told about spiritualists, "fortune tellers," "psychics," etc. Such creatures CAN'T look into the future, because you only SEE light reflected from some real object back to your eye and sent traveling along the optic nerve to the brain. No psychic can see what isn't happening, because there isn't anything to see. Therefore there is no seeing into the FUTURE. Fortune telling is fraud.

There cannot be any spirit photographs; only the ignorant or foolish would believe the contrary. For in the photograph you need again the force of light and the solid substance of matter. The spiritualists invented "ectoplasm" to supply something solid to the spirits, but the ectoplasm turned out to be part of a fat lady medium. If you hit it, she screamed.

A young woman recently came to the East from Kansas to show how she could tell the future, solve mysteries, reveal those guilty of crimes unsolved, etc. She made quite an impression on certain foolish minds. But she made one mistake, according to a charge made by a Mrs. Foley. Mrs. Foley said the psychic woman had looked into the ether and had located her missing son in Los Angeles at a time when he was actually in Pittsburgh. He had never been to Los Angeles.

That's what happens when the facts come out. There are no limitation eyes that can see through the distance to far-off places, or through time unborn and look into the future. There is reserved for supernatural beings that don't dwell on this earth. FORCE CANNOT ACT WITHOUT MATTER. Mind can't express itself without force and matter combined.

You can't SPEAK without using vocal cords and breathe. Lungs supply the force. And if you spoke in a vacuum, with no air waves to carry your voice, what you said couldn't be heard. Spirits couldn't talk for lack of voice cords. That doesn't mean that this is a material universe. It means that the wisdom of the universe has provided us with matter and force to keep us busy, entertain us, make us work and won't let us achieve results in any other way.

When Middle-Aged Men Ride

Two Rules Mean Safety

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central Railroad, who was killed by a fall from his horse, was a REAL railroad man, a builder, not of the STOCKTICKER type of railroad "expert." His death is a great loss to railroading, and a WARNING TO MEN PAST FIFTY THAT RIDE.

Two rules should be observed by men after middle age. First, always use a COVERED stirrup of the army saddle type, never an OPEN stirrup. Thus you will avoid being dragged by your horse. Children should never be allowed to ride with the open stirrup. It has injured many of them, and the so-called "safety stirrup" is not SAFE.

Second, older men should always ride with a hat made of stiff felt, not the ordinary light derby. Such a hat, forming a solid air cushion and breaking the fall, would have saved Mr. Smith's life. A middle-aged man riding in a soft cap risks his life every time he goes out. Any good hat maker will supply the safety hat. An ordinary hard blow with the fist will not dent it. That's how you identify it.

Helping Mexico—and Stopping the Checks

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

Mr. Doheny says he sent five million dollars to help Obregon. If so, the money was well spent, according to those that know Obregon. He is trying to give stable government to his country.

American gentlemen sending checks to Mexican statesmen, during the exciting revolutionary period, of Villa's eminence, had to do quick thinking and acting.

It was not unusual for an American to send a check to Mexico to help an individual patriot, only to hear that he had been beaten and another Mexican patriot was on top.

Then the American, who didn't want his Mexican property confiscated, was obliged hurriedly to stop payment on that particular check at the bank and issue another for the same amount to the other Mexican, the one victorious for the moment.

American money and intelligence have helped to develop Mexico, and our financial "best minds" should not be subjected to these strains.

Prosperity? Yes, a Little

Ask the Coal Man

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

There are signs of prosperity here and there. For instance, not long ago coal companies were telling you that they REALLY COULDN'T live—miners wanted such terrific wages, etc.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company, in 1923, earned something over $7,000,000 after putting away reserve funds, etc. That was $16.15 a share on the common stock. In 1922 the stock earned only $5.02.

The New York Central report shows a surplus in 1923 of $27,748,770—more than twenty million dollars in excess of the surplus in 1922. No wonder the stockholders regret the sudden death of their president, a real railroad man.

When you hear that corporations "can't afford today's high wages," look at the reports.

FUMIGATION FOR LEGISLATION

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

FOR many years I have worked for people through newspapers. Hundreds of letters come to me every week, letters which touch on every conceivable human problem. A great proportion of these letters are from unhappy women. Nearly always a man, or the lack of a man, is the cause of the unhappiness. We hear many jokes about the Lovelocks, but Lovelocks are in truth no joke. It is the grimmest of human miseries. We can endure almost any lash of misfortune if we have love, but without it all success loses savor and tragedy is doubly black.

So when poor Hilda sits down and writes in broken English of the indifference of her ice man, I do not laugh. I feel far more like crying. I've known indifferent ice men myself. And a great longing fills me to tell Hilda how the man who really wins her ice man. She has such sad need of the truth to take the place of the silly, futile tradition in which she now places her faith.

You know the tradition, Pal. It has come down from the days of woman's slavery and never yet has it failed to produce its ultimate harvest of hate and misunderstanding.

"If you want a man, play on his jealousy," said that ancient pack of lies. "Lure him. Charm him. Evade and baffle him. Never let him be too sure of you. Never tell him anything. Never trust him fully. Watch him, particularly if you are married to him, for the Other Woman is always trying to steal him, and he is always a little ready to be stolen. Don't be too liberal in your love-making. Don't forgive too easily. A man doesn't value anything he can get too cheaply."

employed all winter. I cannot give the exact age but they are boys about 8 or 9 and 12, and a little girl about 3. They are worthy people but will work for help. I can help them some by giving food and fuel but not with clothing or money. Anything and I will gladly take them.

Poor, But Helps

Editor Helping Hand:

I have an almost new winter coat that will fit a girl of 8 years. It is blue and white and will fit a girl 11 or 12 years old and a dark blue serge sailor hat

On and on go the lies, building up that bleak barrier which separates one sex from the other. And it's all wrong. Why? Because it is contrary to the big plan on which men and women were made. Love wasn't supposed to be a tricky game—men and women weren't supposed to be hunters and prey.

Men and women were meant to be comrades, and love was the beautiful, natural reward which was to bind them together in the great work of making homes and rearing families. Spring madness might go with the youthful mating season but, after that, love was supposed to make for peace and friendliness, loyalty and understanding. That was the simple, wholesome program into which our lives were to be fitted. But instead of following that program and adapting love to the rhythm of life, we have segregated it and grown hysterical over it and made a lot of fool rules which drive us apart instead of drawing us together.

How shall we find love? By being sane and sympathetic. A man doesn't want an alluring, baffling, intriguing, provoking, exciting, flibbing, elusive Temptress. He doesn't want something he has to puzzle over and chase and conquer before she'll settle down and fry the evening beefsteak.

Such creature may add to a Summer's holiday, but she's about as useful to have around the house for keep as a dose of hives. A man wants a Pal—a comfortable companion who will cheer and stimulate him, but who won't keep him in an emotional frenzy nor too feverish. That's the real dope on the Way to a Man's Heart. And if you don't believe it, just hand this article to John Henry and ask his opinion.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON NATURE AND THE PRETTY GIRL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE other day on the street car I saw two girls, each about twenty years old, both very beautiful.

They were dished in modish robes, beaming hats and pretty shoes. Their faces were of a delicate pink and white. They were well fed, their eyes were happy, and their mouths were curved in smiles.

They were coming from the fashionable residence part of the city, and going to a matinee.

After the theatre they would probably go to the confectioner's and buy sweets and harmless drinks, and chatter and laugh and meet other soft creatures of their kind, and go home to full meals and white beds.

The other women on the crowded car were ordinary. They all had hard and somewhat unpleasant faces, lined with care and sagged with worry. Their garments were coarse. Those of them who were not too lean were too fat. They were not good to look at or on.

These two girls show like two wild roses growing among crowded weeds by the roadside. They seemed hardly to belong to the same race as the others.

Whereupon I fell to musing.

What is the meaning of the Pretty Girl?

If you are normal and human, she affects you delightfully. Unless you are soured you cannot feel angry toward her.

If your mind is not hopelessly warped you cannot consider her as merely a sin or a temptation of the devil.

Nature made her. And made her apparently for the same reason that peach blossoms, birds of Paradise and sunsets are made.

For some reason there is something in old Mother Nature that delights in creating things so sheer beauty. She not only makes gigantic forces which operate in storms, and earthquakes, and chemical affinities, and the properties of numbers, and toads, and elephants—she makes hyscians and Pretty Girls. Somewhere in the great purpose that is behind all things there is a certain value put upon beauty. What beauty is we do not know any more than we know what electricity is, but we know that it thrills us, and that the very fact that we can appreciate it increases our self-respect. And notwithstanding all the fools in the world that have had beautiful faces and ugly souls, I still believe that beauty and goodness are somehow akin.

I still believe that every artist who strives to make beautiful things is helping the world along.

And I believe that Nature, after practicing a good many million years, has come about as near perfection as she can ever arrive when she makes a Pretty Girl.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON ASTROLOGY

By Garrett P. Serviss.

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

"Is there, in your opinion, any truth to the claim that the stars and other heavenly bodies have an effect upon our lives?"

We learn anything of the future from the stars? My brother insists that any astronomer will change the affirmative to the negative questions. I contend otherwise.—H. B. H."

NO astronomer will "champion" the belief, which many persons undoubtedly entertain, that our destinies are controlled by the heavenly bodies. Your brother must be thinking of astrology. But astronomy and astrology are utterly different things, though both are concerned with the sun, moon, planets, comets, stars, etc.

The astronomer studies these things by strictly scientific methods, and then tries to find out what they are, how they are governed and related to one another by physical laws. The astrologer assumes that these bodies in the heavens influence our lives and our characters by means of "cosmic" influences. The astrologer assumes that these bodies in the heavens influence our lives and our characters by means of "cosmic" influences. The astrologer assumes that these bodies in the heavens influence our lives and our characters by means of "cosmic" influences.

There is no more mystery in his procedures than in calculating when a particular train will arrive from a distant point by consulting the timetable. But suppose the astronomer, instead of showing you that his calculations are based on plain mathematical laws, themselves founded on common sense and universal experience, should claim that the heavenly bodies operated in his prediction worked together by some mysterious system of influences unaccounted for by human experience of natural laws.

Don't confuse astrology with astronomy. The first is a product of human ignorance and superstition; the second is a science. The first and noblest traits of advancing science.
